Teaching sessions & attendance on immunization

Report on teaching sessions carried out on the relevance and operational features of the immunization clinic:

The students are introduced to the importance of childhood immunization during their learning sessions in the department of Paediatrics and Community Medicine. These sessions are in the form of didactic lectures, demonstrations and small group learning.

The students are also introduced to the operational and organizational features of the immunization clinic. The students are taught the details of the immunization schedule with regards to the site, dose, route of administration, age at which to be administered, pre and post vaccination precautions, vaccine administration, any adverse reactions, proper documentation and maintenance of complete record of immunization. The importance of counseling of the parents is also explained to the students.

The students are made aware of the guidelines given by the WHO for vaccination. These include maintenance of the cold chain, quality maintenance record, monitoring of the temperature of storage, precautions to be taken during storage of vaccines and carrying vaccines and proper biomedical waste disposal.

The learning sessions are followed by assessment of the students with respect to the topics relevant to their understanding of the importance of childhood immunization.
